Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

UNDER this heading only recently I wrote that America is a self-governed nation not because the people themselves actually govern but because they are governed by laws which the people administer. I should amend this declaration, however; sometimes the people don't stop at administering, but step out in the realm of law-making—and the result is funny.

U. S. to Persuade Property Owners to Make Improvements

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The administration will make a strong effort to persuade home owners to spend $1,500,000,000 on home renovation, but will postpone until next year a broader program for mass home construction and slum clearance.

At a White House conference of cabinet members and heads of recovery agencies with President Roosevelt Thursday it was decided:

To ask congress for legislation setting up a Mortgage Guarantee Corporation which would guarantee loans made by virtually any private lending agency, but which would not lend money itself.

To have a vast national organization with state and local committees to convince and encourage home owners to borrow, and lending agencies to lend, sums ranging from $200 to $2,000.

To defer until next session of congress more extensive plans, involving large expenditure of government funds, to stimulate new home building and creation of large housing units in slum areas.

"Mule Labor" by Convicts Is Stopped

Futrell Orders It Stopped Although Abuse Is Lacking

"Fact That This Is Work of Mules" Leads to Executive Order

PLANTING DELAYED

Penitentiary System Hasn't Enough Mules to Handle Field Work

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Governor Futrell Friday ordered the penal board to stop the use of convicts in the place of mules to pull cotton-planters at Tucker Prison Farm.

In his statement the governor said the pulling of a 100-pound planter by "six able-bodied men is not harmful to them," but declared that "the fact that this is the work of a mule suggests the practice should be stopped."

"I have requested the board to do so," the governor said.

Soon afterward, Chairman Walter Helms of the penal board ordered Penal Superintendent Stedman to discontinue the practice.

The governor acted after receiving a report from his private secretary, Grady McCall, and Helms, who Thursday witnessed a demonstration of this unique method at Tucker Farm.

After the demonstration Helms expressed the view that the men were not being subjected to harsh treatment.

Helms said the discontinuance of the practice would delay planting, as the prison system did not have mules enough to replace the convicts.

Men Not Abused

TUCKER PRISON FARM, Ark.—(AP)—The chairman of the state Penal Board saw a demonstration of convicts working "in the races" here Thursday pulling cotton planters and ruled their task was not too hard.

Substitution of "man power" for mules during the crop planting period will be continued, he said.

Chairman Walter Helms and II. Grady McCall, secretary to Governor Futrell, were asked by the governor to investigate the practice after it had been revealed that the men were being used for work because of a shortage of work stock.

Supt. A. G. Stedman said the work that the men were doing was no harder than any other manual tasks they were forced to perform.

Eight "teams" of six convicts each were marching up and down the mile-long cotton rows, with a seventh man driving the planter.

The convicts were used only at Tucker farm No. 2 in an effort to speed the task of planting cotton.

The "hitch" consisted of a rope attached to the planter, with three turned-logs sticks for the men to push against they walked along in the "middles."

Are Supposed to Work

Chairman Helms said he had not been advised previously that the men were being used for the work, but that after viewing it and the conditions under which it was being done, he saw no reason why it should be stopped.

"These men are here for a definite purpose," he said. "Most of them received sentences calling for hard labor. This labor is no harder than clearing timber, cutting ditches or hoeing in the fields. It is necessary that all of the 1,600 men confined here be kept busy. This is one way of doing the job."

Officials said the idea of using men to pull planters was originated by a convict who had been transferred from the Boys Industrial School near Pine Bluff.

The convict told members of the party that much of the planting there was done with the inmates pulling the machinery, and he had done such work in 1930 and while he served two previous sentences.

Convicts Not Complaining

Chairman Helms and Mr. McCall interviewed the men working today. J. O. Snyder of Wynne said it was "dirty work," and harder than digging ditches. "I wouldn't mind it if my feet didn't bother me some," he added.

George Norris, sentenced from Boone county to four years, said "it's all right after you get used to it. Some of the guys who weren't used to farm work couldn't get along so well at first, but it doesn't hurt you after you have been here awhile."

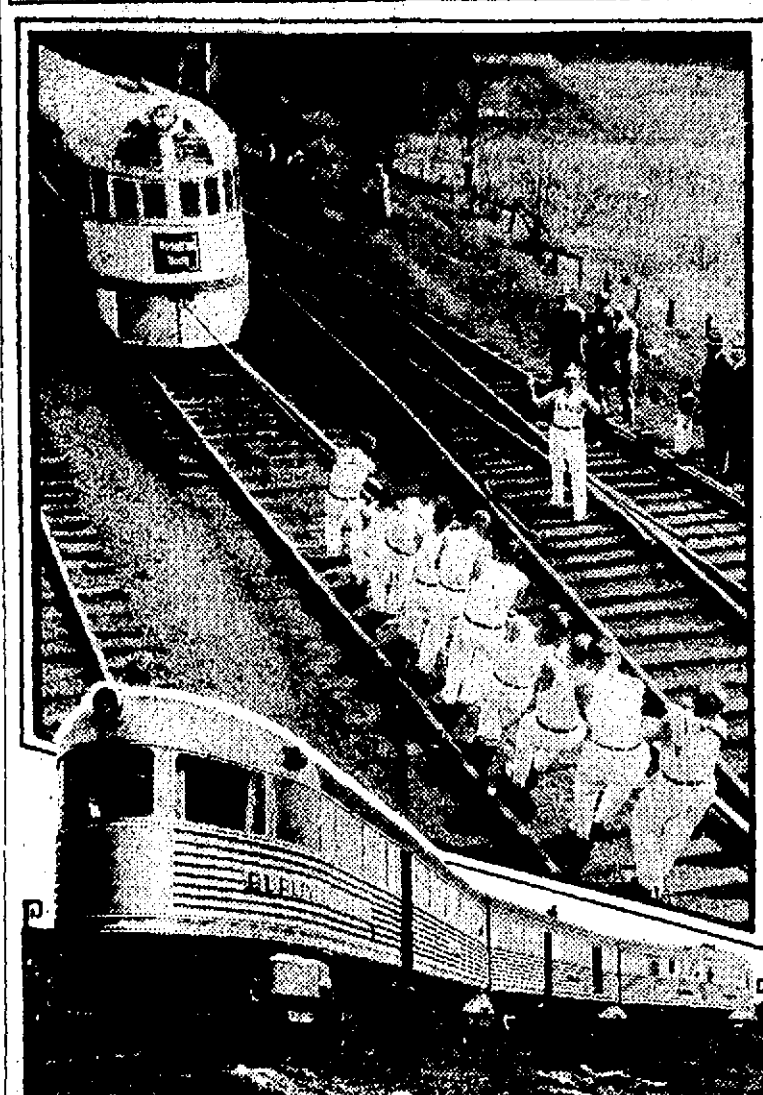

All the convicts interviewed said they were allowed rest periods, and were not compelled to work when they were "not able."

A rain Wednesday night had made the ground soft, and many of the convicts had piled their shoes at the turn row and were working in bare feet.

It was easier to walk in the black

Ten Men Pull This New Train

A new chapter in the history of rail transportation was recorded in Philadelphia when the Zephyr, America's first Diesel-powered streamlined stainless steel train, sped at a rate of 104 miles an hour in its first trial run. So light that 10 men can pull it (as shown in the test above), the three-car train, which can accommodate 12 passengers, is shown below after its high speed test run. It was built for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad.

Highway Officials Meet Here Friday

State Director Rhyne and Chairman Cargile Attend Conference

State and district officials of the Arkansas Highway Department held their April meeting Friday in the district offices in Hope, with a noon luncheon at Hotel Barclay.

Headed by Chairman J. S. Cargile of the State Highway Commission and J. R. Rhyne, director of highways, the Little Rock party included the following:

J. C. Baker, state maintenance engineer; J. A. Francis, equipment supervisor; G. W. Stanford, oil and gas superintendent; and Tom Haley, supervisor of toll bridges.

Also present were the seven district maintenance supervisors and their staffs:

Grocers Warned to Pay Their Dues

Local Code Authority Reports Some Hope Stores Delinquent

A number of local grocers have failed to complete their code assessment forms and return them to the Local Food and Grocery Distributors' Code Authority, New Postoffice Building, Texarkana, according to a message to The Star from K. M. Durham, code authority secretary.

In his letter warning that delinquencies will be reported after this month, Mr. Durham says:

"The forms were to be returned within 15 days to this office but I find that quite a number of the merchants in your city and adjoining territory have neglected to return the assessments as required."

"I might further advise that those not receiving the assessment forms are expected to call for them because the new insignia that will shortly be issued will be supplied through this office and on the basis of the assessment filed. However, I have instructions to report to the authorities at Washington, D. C., those delinquent in returning their assessment forms."

Washington Gets Digest Write-Up

National Weekly Pays Tribute to All-Woman Government

Washington, the Homestead county seat, is "written up" in the Topics of the Day department of the current issue of the Literary Digest. The Digest thought Washington's all-woman government so novel that it made it one of the seven topics for the week. The Digest article follows:

Women are city mothers in Arkansas, but men are just men. A few weeks ago Mayor J. S. Monroe of Washington, Arkansas, dispatched an emissary to Grandma Charlean Moss Williams, asking her if she would relieve him of his job. She is sixty-five, but she reached for a broom and said "Yes." She made one condition, that some other women be elected to assist her.

The men put their heads together and compromised by naming an all-woman ticket. Grandma Williams will be assisted by a recorder and five aldermen of her own sex. She said she was going to do "a little housecleaning, like sweeping up the streets."

Washington has a population of 500. During the War Between the States it was the temporary capital of Arkansas. Now it achieves a new fame from its adventure in matriarchy.

U. S. to Purchase Old Closed Banks

R. F. C. Policy Will Release Billion in Frozen Deposits

WASHINGTON—More than 1,000 banks which closed as a result of last year's banking holiday and which held $1,500,000,000 in deposits when they closed have never sought federal aid. Jess H. Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, revealed Thursday. He said probably $1,000,000,000 was still frozen in those banks.

Plans to buy up these and all other closed banks at a fair appraised value in order to pay off their depositors in part continued to take shape within the government. The project of the government buying up the banks has won the support of a strong group of congressmen, including Senator Carter Glass, Democrat, Virginia, who see in it a means of heading off inflationary demands for full payment.

Gambling-Control Bill for Exchange Is Sent to Senate

Plenty of Teeth in It, Says Investigator Ferdinand Pecora

NO SILVER ACTION

Roosevelt Looks to London Pact—Frowns on Congressional Move

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The revised stock market control bill was approved Friday by the senate banking committee, 11 to 8, culminating two years of investigation of Wall Street practices and weeks of conflict over the provisions of the measure.

The bill as reported to the senate had plenty of teeth to prevent repetition of the practices uncovered during the long inquiry into market operations. Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, said.

No Vital NRA Complaints

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Recovery Administrator Hugh Johnson told the American Society of Newspaper Editors Friday that no charges of NRA code violation brought against any large manufacturers had developed a case that would stand up in the courts.

F. D. Meets Railroads

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt Friday conferred with railway labor leaders in an effort to adjust the controversy over a new wage scale.

The president also arranged for conferences during the day on the disputed Wagner labor board bill, and a proposal to have Federal Reserve banks make direct loans to industry.

It also was made known at the White House the president feels that an answer to the silver remonetization problem lies in the formula presented at the London economic conference last year whereby all nations would fix definite reserves of silver in ratio to their gold supply.

This would bring for the first time in history a fixed ratio between gold and silver throughout the world.

It is believed the president will stand pat against mandatory legislation at this session regarding silver.

Air Contracts Friday

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Postoffice Department officials said Thursday night they believed that most, if not all, of the 12 companies whose mail contracts were cancelled last week would be found competent for awards again when bids are opened Friday.

While preparations to inspect the offers for temporary contracts for private lines went on, First Assistant Postmaster General W. W. Howes testified before a senate committee that private contractors did a better job at carrying the mail than the army.

He told Senator Austin, Republican, Vermont, a member of the Special Air Mail Committee that air mail transportation under present arrangements was "slower" and that the former system generally was superior.

Army fatalities at one time caused a cessation of mail carrying for a brief period while efforts were made to reduce accident hazards. The schedule was curtailed once the army resumed transportation.

Plan Endangered
Postoffice Department officials admitted the plan to return the mails to private companies within the near future might be balked if the former contractors refused to bid.

It was said that only a comparatively few independent companies were in a position to carry the mails on short notice. Officials added, however, that their information was that most of the former contractors had reorganized.

A stipulation of the bidding was that the concerns whose awards were scrapped must rid themselves of officers who participated in the 1933 conference with former Postmaster General Brown.

At the meeting—the government charges—arrangements were made with Brown to divide up the air mail routes. The time may be extended.

Sugar Control Passed

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A governmental plan for helping the sugar producer by curtailing production and raising prices was approved late Thursday by the senate. The Jones-Costigan sugar control bill in which the plan is embodied was sent back to the house for agreement on minor amendments.

The measure calls for a limitation upon the amount that each sugar producing area may produce, providing a

Cannon Declares Plot Impossible

Bishop Says His Secretary Didn't Know of $48,000 Gift

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., told a District of Columbia jury Friday that he was not responsible for reports made by Miss Ida L. Burroughs of contributions against the presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

Cannon told the jury he and his secretary could not have conspired to violate the federal corrupt practices act in failing to report $48,000 received for the campaign because the woman never knew he had obtained the money.

It recommends administrative and legislative action, if necessary, to prevent political lawyers from presenting claims for clients to the friends of such lawyers in high public office.

The recommendations were adopted by the District of Columbia Grand Jury after an extensive investigation of army contract awards. No indictments resulted.

Holding that sale of surplus army goods by negotiation instead of bids was partly responsible, the report continues, the grand jury found that the "Star" Department, which it says "gave color to belief that influence was valuable" in negotiating for army contracts.

Conduct of a motor manufacturer who sought an army contract is described as "reprehensible," and disension is reported between Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, and the army General Staff.

The grand jury report turned attention to legislation which was brought up in the senate early this week but later laid aside.

Dysentery Causes Death for Three

Tropical Malady Breaks Out in Southeast Arkansas

CROSSETT, Ark.—Mrs. Tom Evans, wife of an Ashley county farmer, is the latest to be stricken with what physicians say is amebic dysentery, a serious tropical malady which has caused the death of three members of the family of John Oden, farmer of the 17th community, 12 miles north of here. Oden is a sharecropper on the Evans farm and Mrs. Evans has helped care for the family.

Mrs. Ben Hill, aged 62, mother of Mrs. Oden, died April 6. Annie Lee Oden, aged two, died April 12, and Paul Oden aged six, died Monday. It was reported here Thursday that Mrs. Oden, mother of the children, and two other small girls in the family are critically ill, and that little hope for their recovery is held. Several neighbors of the Odens have the same disease, but deaths thus far have been confined to the one family. John Oden, the father, is the only member of the family not ill.

News of the three deaths and the spreading disease has caused considerable uneasiness among residents of this section. County and health and relief officials have sent food, bedding and medical aid to those needing it. Hamburg physicians attended the Oden family and Dr. W. L. Smith of Crossett was called to attend Mrs. Evans. Miss Avis Pearce, formerly Crossett public school health nurse, volunteered her services.

Dr. Smith said that he believes victims of the disease could have escaped it had they guarded against drinking water from the shallow wells of the neighborhood, and if they had been given proper nourishment earlier. Nearly all the victims recently had the measles and had been left in a weakened condition.

Declares Monroe Doctrine to Give Control Over Asia

European Capitals Study Startling Declaration From Tokyo

POWERS ALARMED

It May Mean End of "Open Door" Policy for Chinese Trade

By the Associated Press
The Japanese warning to the world to keep hands off of China was construed in various Western capitals Friday as a Monroe doctrine for Asia.

Japan issued a warning that while she had no objection to other nations giving financial and technical assistance to Asia, such assistance almost inevitably leads to political meddling, and henceforth Japan will see to it by force if necessary, that there is no meddling in China.

The authoritative reaction in London was that Great Britain will follow the lead of the United States in expressing her stand on the matter.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

To Fix Facts in a Child's Mind Give Him Interesting Details

Children reading adventure stories almost invariably find the parched and lost hero welcoming the cool of the swift tropical evening and getting his bearings by the Southern Cross. But nobody tells them what the Southern Cross looks like. Here I am, a comparatively well-read and middle-aged lady, yet I had to revamp my idea of the famous constellation completely when I saw it leaning lazily on the horizon in a southern land.

It looks like a kite, the four visible stars forming it, being the four ends of a crucifix. If there is a star at the intersection I did not see it. It takes up less room in the sky than our northern Dipper but once identified it is unmistakable and leaves a decided impression.

Facts Without Details

There are so many things that children do not know. They are given facts but few details and it is details that fix memory by appealing to interest.

Perhaps in some parts of the world coffee trees or bushes do grow in neat cultivated rows under a clear open sky. I saw none. My coffee trees (they grow fifteen or twenty feet high and are very bushy) grew under other trees—tall trees, mostly trunk, with thick foliage high up to form a protective "roof" from the burning sun.

The small coffee plants are carefully set out and carefully cultivated but once grown the plantation closely resembles a jungle. It takes the round berry many months to turn from a little green ball to a reddish marble containing a double kernel, flat sides together, that is the coffee of commerce. It takes a terrific amount of washing, drying and sorting to get it into shape for export. No coffee is brown when it is put into canvas sacks to be shipped. It is shipped "green," that is, it is a pale greenish brown that changes to the familiar shade we know when roasted. Coffee made from the untreated berry does not taste like coffee.

Children do not know as a rule that the cactus blooms. There are thirty-seven varieties and the various blossoms are amongst the most beautiful flowers in the world. Reds, pinks, and yellows. I have not seen a blue one.

Nature as a Teacher

A "road-runner" is a bird as large as a chicken but very, very slender and beautiful. It is very tame and a friend to everybody and everything but the rattlesnake which it kills by building a circle of thorny branches around its sleeping enemy. The story is that the snake, finding itself trapped and facing starvation, stings itself to death. I found nothing to refute the story and everything to verify it.

Plates did more damage to early civilization in America than can be understood from a mere book. Fortifications in Spanish America are not forts but walled cities built out of and carved into solid rock that leaves an average modern engineer breathless and unbelieving.

Sea-water can be and is in many places a deep sapphire blue that looks like the bluing-tub on Monday only more so.

The Gulf Stream is so warm that leaving it, in fifteen minutes one is hunting a winter coat and changing a leveless silk dress for heavy wool.

We do not make things real enough to children. We neglect the accent notes that fix memory.

LIFE

Let me but live my life from year to year,
With forward face and, unreluctant soul,
Not hurrying to, nor turning from, the goal;
Not mourning for the things that disappear
In the dim past, nor holding back in fear
From what the future veils; but with a whole
And happy heart that pays its toll
To Youth and Age, and travels on
With cheer.
So let the way wind up the hill or down,
O'er rough or smooth, the journey
will be joy;
Still seeking what I sought when a boy,
New friendships, high adventure, and a crown.
My heart will keep the courage of the quest,
And hope the road's last turn will be the best.—Henry Van Dyke.

"Full Feeling" After Meals

Here is how Thedford's Black-Draught proved helpful to Mr. Archie W. Brown, of Fort Green, Fla.: "I have taken Black-Draught when I have felt dull from over-eating or eating too hurriedly," he writes. "Small doses right after meals rid me of gases and heavy feeling. I am a great believer in Black-Draught."

Mrs. W. R. Chandler on South Pine street. The president, Mrs. T. R. King presided and used "America" as the opening song. Mrs. Edwin Dossett, a visitor, gave a most inspiring devotional, her theme being "Beneficial Fruits." After the reading of the minutes, by the secretary, Mrs. Dock Richards, and the treasurer's report by Mrs. Ida Boyett, a splendid program was given, the general topic being "The New Crusade." Reading "The New Crusade" by Miss Tompkins Lee Toland. Mrs. K. G. McRae gave an account of the regional conference recently held in New York city, reaffirming the belief that national prohibition is the best method for the control of the vicious liquor traffic; leaders of the National Temperance Union announced just recently a militant drive to convert the nation to the benefits of abstinence from alcohol. "We will teach both adults and youth the habit forming nature of alcohol and we will promote scientific instruction in the school, we will continue to stand for total abstinence from alcohol." Young manhood and alcohol asking the personal question, "What will you do as an individual do with alcohol?" by Mrs. W. M. Cantley. Most pleasing were the two voice numbers, "Four Leaf Clover" and "Sing, Sing Birds on the Wing" by Miss Mary Agnes Redwine, with Miss Harriett Story accompanying. Reading "Twenty Million Women" by Miss Marguerite Dildy. Mrs. H. H. Stuart gave excerpts from Union Signal exposing some of the dangerous practices used to lure boys and girls. After the closing prayer by Mrs. Vesey Crutchfield, the hostesses served a delightful ice course.

spongy soil without the heavy work shoes, they said.
"This work is much harder than any other work on the farm," Charley Cox, a driver of one of the planter teams, said. "Three months of it will cure you. If you stay here too long, you get to be a hardened criminal, though."

All testified that they received good food and clothing, and that their living quarters were comfortable.

"We have good food and plenty of it," Horace Midget of Little Rock said. "Last night we had baked ham, vegetables and good bread, and every man had a pint of milk for supper. That's about the kind of food we get all the time."

Not Enough Mules
"We do not have enough mules for the farm," Superintendent Stedman said. "With the lack of money in the penitentiary fund, no work stock has been bought for several years. Our mules are all old, and with heavy work they die fast. We are not able to buy any more right now."

The prison farm system contains 17,000 acres, with the principal crop being cotton.
Governor Futrell said that since the legislature in special session last January gave complete control of the penal system to the state Penal Board, headed by Helms, he preferred not to comment upon the practice until he had a report from McCall.

processing tax and payment of benefits to growers from this tax-derived fund for reducing the acreage they plant to sugar cane and beets.

Production quotas of 1,550,000 tons for domestic beet sugar growers and 280,000 tons for Louisiana and Florida cane producers were provided. Off-shore quotas would be fixed by the secretary of Agriculture through import limitations.

The vote on final passage was 49 to 18. The measure was approved virtually as it came from the finance committee.

Fess Plays Bill
Fess, Republican, Ohio, in opening the debate said such legislation as the sugar control bill might have been satisfactory a year ago, "but now we are aware of the glaring failures of the farm adjustment act and in the face of that you propose to enlarge upon it."

"He asserted the measure was merely 'throwing more obstacles in the path of recovery instead of giving business a chance,' and added that farm commodities not under the Farm Administration had increased in price beyond those controlled by the Farm Administration.

In offering his amendment for a fixed Hawaiian quota of 975,000 tons, Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, said Hawaii was "as much a part of the United States as the District of Columbia." He predicted that within a year the fallacies of "New Deal experimentation" would be evident to the world.

"It is apparently going to take the country a little while longer to realize you can not repeal economic laws by legislation," Reed said.

of all closed bank depositors.
Whether the RFC will be instructed to carry out the new proposal of buying up closed banks or whether the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation will be assigned the task, remained the only question Thursday night.

Mr. Jones advanced a combination plan calling for speedy RFC loans to all closed banks on the basis of their remaining assets and then for a purchase of these assets from the RFC by the FDIC. Mr. Jones said the FDIC was not equipped to act quickly in purchasing closed banks followed by the plan of RFC loans followed by purchase later would speed up the program.

The program of expanding closed banks loans has been started by the RFC, Jones revealed. Agents have been sent to Colorado, to persuade the state banking commissioner to send in the loan applications of closed banks.

Ninety-two loans to closed banks involving almost $10,000,000 were approved by the RFC Wednesday. Altogether the RFC has advanced $54,000,000 to 2,360 closed banks, enabling them to pay out this sum to their depositors.

Reputation a Big Item in Beer Sale

Anheuser-Busch Opens Local Advertising Campaign

For the past 75 years Anheuser-Busch, Inc., of St. Louis have been known the world over as producers of quality products exclusively. The world-wide acceptance enjoyed by this famous St. Louis institution for over three-quarters of a century has been achieved solely on the rigid policy of the maintenance of superior quality.

This brewery, which is the largest in the world, never closed its doors or ceased operations during the 14 year period of prohibition. The equipment was continually kept up to the minute and beer, which was converted into legalized beverage, was brewed under government license all through the prohibition period.

Anheuser-Busch have consistently, year in and year out, supported their dealers with localized advertising through the newspapers. This year, as always, they are blanketing the country with newspaper advertising to run continuously through the height of the beer selling season. This advertising is hammering home the fact that the quality of Budweiser has set the standard measure for all bottled beers.

Anheuser-Busch officials report that they have ordered for Budweiser beer from every civilized nation on the face of the globe. Such popularity could never be won with anything short of Budweiser quality. This quality combined with the support of newspaper advertising shows just what can be accomplished when a product of outstanding merits is backed by consistent newspaper advertising.

While the world is full of things that people want, it is up to the producers of these things to tell people about them and in doing so, Anheuser-Busch is using the medium of the daily newspapers, the medium most people read.

Paralysis Clinic Proposed for Spa

New Bathhouse May Be Launched at Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—Local capital interested in bathhouse promotion is seeking to establish a bathing facility exclusively for treatment of infantile paralysis.

Conferences have been held with Thomas J. Allen Jr., superintendent of Hot Springs National park. There are three ways in which the project could be carried out. First, a bathhouse that would contain only one large pool, divided for male and female bathers, might be built; second, two of the present establishments could combine for this project, or, third, one of the present bathhouses could be remodeled and a pool built.

Superintendent Allen believes that such a project is "bound to come." He said the government is greatly interested in seeing such a feature established, believing that the same excellent results will be obtained as at Warm Springs, Ga. The latter is a private project, headed by President Roosevelt. The local hot, medicinal springs are owned and controlled by the federal government.

ever to fear from me! It's rather the other way—"

Falteringly but bravely she told her story. Half way through the narrative he broke in to say, "But the old man was beating the child—"

"He testified that you were not alone. He said there were two other people with you; a man and a girl—"

"He testified!" Pablo echoed stupidly.

"Yes, yes! You didn't think—?"

"I thought he was dead," he answered and for a moment closed his eyes.

"Watcha talkin' about?" Beau demanded shortly.

She told him. "She's still in there," Lottie finished with a backward nod of her head. "Says she wants to tell the whole thing!"

He was on his feet instantly and after one hunted look about the room began throwing clothing into a yawning traveling bag. Lottie sank to the edge of the bed.

"What about Lou?" she asked.

"Don't you tell her until I'm on my way!" Beau said emphatically.

"There's a boat outa Santiago tomorrow mornin'," she suggested.

"That's too late."

"There's nothin' else but what sails for Key West and New York."

"Oh, shut up! I don't need a nurse."

"There's a little boat sailing for the Isle of Pines. If you wasn't afraid of waitin' around there a week you might try that."

"Listen, kid, you book your own reservations. I'll make mine. Wonder if I got everything?"

"I'd hate to see you sent up, Beau."

"Say—they'll never get me!" He picked up the bag, his hat and a light coat. "So long, kid," he said.

"Maybe we'll meet in hell if not before."

"We been together a long while, Beau."

"Sure have!" he agreed. With a little emotion that made his voice rough he added, "Well, kiss me."

She raised her face.

He descended the rear stairway and stepped into the taxi that was waiting for Marcia, smiling as he did so. The lady, he told the driver, had decided to remain indefinitely. "Ah!" murmured the driver. He looked over his shoulder slyly and he and Beau exchanged a fraternal, understanding wink.

But Beau's self-confidence dwindled as they neared Havana. The get-away was not going to be so easy. "Damn it," he muttered half aloud. "This is what comes of neglectin' business. I'm as scared as when I quit Sing Stie's goodby."

The memory of Lottie's goodby clung to him, too. Lottie was a good kid. "An awful good kid," Beau reflected mournfully. "If I'd married her it would have saved me a lotta trouble." He was thinking of Lou.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson Our All For the Kingdom

Text: Matt. 19:1-20
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 22.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

The story of the rich young man who came to Jesus seeking the way of eternal life has made a profound impression upon human interest. It does not seem to have had an equal effect upon spiritual attitudes and decisions of the will.

Wealth, though it need not necessarily be a barrier between man and God, and though it may in fact be made a means of grace and blessing, still constitutes a barrier that keeps men from the kingdom of Heaven and from appropriating the reality of eternal life.

It is as true today as it was in the days when Jesus was on earth that where man's treasure is, there will his heart be also. The Kingdom of Heaven must be the first and supreme thing in a man's life or it cannot be there at all, just as in a modern world a man cannot be a citizen of one country and at the same time give his chief allegiance to another country.

The failure to grasp this keeps men from entering the Kingdom, just as it kept this young man who came to Jesus.

One should not in any way misunderstand the dramatic aspects of the narrative. This young man was not a mean or selfish person. There is no indication that he was in any sense a money grubber or that he was unduly attached to his wealth.

He had great possessions, and he no doubt had grown up in the psychology that these great possessions induced.

The probability is that he was unable to see quite clearly the issues involved. He turned away sorrowfully when Jesus invited him to find the Kingdom by leaving his great wealth, but the probability is that he was puzzled rather than confirmed in a wrong decision.

The power of his wealth and his environment had taken from him the capacity for clear thinking and clear seeing.

He was a moral young man. Jesus loved him because there was so much that was right and fine in his life.

We should, no doubt, today in our modern world set such a man as an ideal for youth. Yet here is the clear record that there was one thing lacking, the most essential thing of all, the thing that would have linked him to the Master and that would have given him his place in the Kingdom.

There is a tradition that the young man did ultimately come to Jesus or gave himself to the Kingdom, as he was not willing to do at this time. Tradition has associated this young man with Joseph of Arimathea, who asked for the body of Jesus, that he might bury it; but all this is tradition.

We do not know what was the young man's future, whether his rejection of Jesus and his departure in sorrow marked a final decision in his life, or whether he came later to some finer commitment.

One thing is certain, that if he went away sorrowful, there was thereafter no real peace in his life. He had missed that glorious satisfaction that again and again has come to men and women who have joyfully accepted Christ's invitation, though it has meant, apparently, the sacrifice of everything—even life itself.

They discover the truth of Jesus, that he that loathes his life shall find it.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Along about this time of year, a girl's complexion is apt to be drab and colorless or, and this is even worse, it may take on yellowish or grayish tones that are far from flattering. What she needs, of course, are some cosmetic preparations that will clarify her skin. Buying a jar of one of the new cleansing creams is an excellent step toward getting a face back to normal.

One of these new cleansing creams is a quick-melting variety that liquefies the minute it touches the skin, getting right into the pores and purging them of all impurities. In addition, it contains certain beneficial herbs that are supposed to refresh a "tired" complexion and give it a new vitality.

After all, there is something psychological about adding a new preparation to the cosmetic cabinet. It has the same uplifting effect as buying a new hat.

There is a bleaching cream, too, for faces and throats that cling stubbornly to their attacks of spring fever. This cream is to be applied after you've cleansed your skin, and is to be left on for only five minutes.
